

THIRTIETH SUNDAY IN ORDINARY TIME

FROM: DOCAT
ONE WORLD ONE HUMANITY
The International Community

236. How should human beings treat one another?

People in the world should regard themselves as a community and accept certain differences between individuals and peoples, since this variety is to be seen as wealth. This becomes increasingly important in times of globalization. We are bound together as “members of a common family”, Pope John XXIII writes (MM 157). Values such as truth, solidarity, and freedom, which are indispensable in our everyday relationships, become more and more important globally, too, with the increasing interconnectedness of relations and dependencies. Only in the absence of violence, war, discrimination, intimidation, or deception is it possible to get along well. Therefore, the Church demands that economic and social globalization proceed together with a globalization of justice. Jesus Christ brought fundamental justice to the earth, and we, as his followers, have a special obligation to further this cause by our actions.

237. What does this mean in terms of our use of the world’s resources?

Again and again Catholic social teaching points to the “unity of the human family” and the related “universal destination of goods”. This means that God, as the Creator of the world, destined the earth’s resources to provide for the livelihood and needs of all human beings. Excessive inequality in the distribution of the world’s goods, in contrast, is a scandal. For Christian men and women it is unacceptable for poverty and hunger to be the fate of million of people, while others lead a life of excess and waste. The food stuffs of this world, for example, are not self-evidently the property of those who can pay the most for them. Rather, they are the basis for the life of all human beings.

We will be having our "Thunder & Lightning" Casseroles Campaign for the Good Shepherd Centre next weekend November 2/3. We count on and appreciate your support for this worthy cause to provide meals for those in need. Casseroles are picked up every First Friday of the month.

Thank you for your faithful and generous contribution to the POOR BOX after each Mass. You may use the St. Vincent de Paul envelopes provided at the entrance of the Church, and a tax receipt will be given at the end of the year. Money collected is used to help provide for our neighbours in need.

PRO-LIFE PETITION

This weekend we are encouraging you to sign a petition asking the Canadian Government to reconsider its petition on abortion. This undertaking is supported by the Canadian Conference of Catholic Bishops and many pro-life agencies. Our goal is to deliver 1 million signatures to parliament.
